I The subject matter of the conference

1. The modernisation of public administration and the phenomena of Europeanisation and globalisation

The modernisation processes in national public administration resulting from external factors related to global influences as well as the integration and co-dependence of European countries within the European Union and other international organisations.

2. Economic efficiency in the public sector

The modernisation processes in public administration moving towards: privatising public tasks, developing an administration which provides public services, and boosting the operational efficiency of public administration bodies as well as the effectiveness of using public funds.

3. The openness of public administration: transparency, participation, social dialogue and e-administration

Cooperation between public administration and civil society organisations, the participation by individuals in administrative rulemaking, the right to information and openness of administration, use of IT and ICT technologies in public administration, and the non-imperative actions by public administration.

The conference is of interdisciplinary nature and includes such areas as: law, economics, political science, the science of administration, management, and history of administrative law and administration. We encourage and welcome paper proposals which analyse the modernisation of public administration from the perspective of:

- current changes and trends in administrative law in Poland, the EU and European countries,
- organisation and management in public administration,
- concepts and priorities of as well as action taken by the government and the relations between public administration representatives and citizens; and
- historical and socio-political determinants of change in public administration.

As envisioned by the organisers, the conference participants will include representatives of legal sciences, in particular administrative law and EU law, management and political science, PhD students and practitioners: governmental and local-level administration personnel, officials of state control bodies, as well as barristers, judges and legal counsels.
